LET US BE A PLAYER IN LIFE
WHO RUNS FOR THE GOAL...
AND NOT A REFEREE
WHO LOOKS FOR THE FAULTS...

105-year-old

Pappammal, also known as R Rangamma, who is one of this year's Padma Shri awardees

"At 105, there's nothing I can't do! I wake up at 3 AM, go to my farm before all my workers and after a whole day of ploughing and harvesting, I cycle down to the market to sell my produce!"

There were no formal schools when I was growing up; I am self-taught. I was 14 when I got married and inherited a piece of Appa's land there after.

In those days, married women were confined to four walls, but I didn't want to sit idle. So, at 16, I started my first venture when I set up an idli-vada shop. This was the 1950's when I would earn about 20 Rs. a month.

My husband and I couldn't have kids, hence we adopted. As the years passed, my son grew up, but still I kept myself occupied. At 35, I was appointed the first woman Sarpanch of my village. I would travel to farmers' meet learnt about organic farming; I was fascinated!

At 50, I invested all my money and bought 10 acres of land where I started cultivating my own crops. I didn't make a lot of money, but I was content! After keeping what was needed for me and my husband, I would donate the extra produce.

57 years hence, my routine is still the same. In fact now, my workload has increased. The thing is, this younger lot is very lethargic, so I have to constantly sit on their heads to get the work done. Even my great grandson, who is 16, needs a break every half an hour. I tell him, 'Wake up you lazy boy!'

In all these years, I haven't taken a single day off and after I turned 100, I became the talk of the town. On my centenary, 3000 villagers threw a party for me where I fed them kheer and chicken biryani and we danced to folk songs. People even started inviting me to wedding's to bless the couple as they called me their good luck charm!

Now, when I think of it, from running an idli-vada shop, to being a Sarpanch, to owning an organic farm to being a lucky mascot, I have lived quite a life, but life continues to surprise me. Just 2 weeks back, I got a call from Delhi saying, I'm being awarded the Padma Shri!

Now, hundreds queue up outside my house to buy my produce! Some of them ask me to pose with a big smile while the others ask me to look stern I find everything so funny. Just yesterday, I gave 30 interviews! My grandson keeps telling me, 'Patti, you've become a celebrity!' I chuckle and retort, 'When was I not?'
